The tax girl lived in a neighborhood close to the Haymarket station but rode with me all the way into the main Waverley station. The earliest train carriages were built like stagecoaches with benches facing one another, which might mean the horror of prolonged eye contact. Now I live feet from active rail tracks and walk along them every day.

Isthatevenpossible?Whatanenjoyablejourney. This right-of-way is now leased by Metrolink, a perfectly decent commuter rail line that runs to three counties and is shockingly underused. Interesting history of railroads and train travel on 4 continents. The chapter on India was fascinating and horrifying.
